Jennifer grew up on a small family dairy farm outside London. After high school, she attended H.B Beal S.S for its visual arts program where she fell in love with ceramics. After Beal, Jenny continued her education in ceramics at the Alberta University of the Arts where she graduated with a Bachelor of Fine Arts majoring in Ceramics. Jenny was the LCAC's summer studio technician assistant in the summers of 2016 and 2019, she also taught summer camps in 2017. She became the LCAC's Studio Coordinator and Technician in September of 2019.

Her ceramic work is mostly functional tableware, with some pots for plants. She makes pottery with the intention of the pieces being used to both enjoy individually and communally to help create and grow community. Her inspiration for surface design usually comes from nature and patterns in everyday objects. Jenny loves working with her hands, teaching, and learning from others. She loves plants and animals and constantly is noticing small details when on walks in nature that often end up making their way into her work in one way or another.
